Everybody is cheerful and hopeful. No very heavy shalters will occur, and not many of any kind. The city will be rebuilt in better shape than before, and as rapidly as possible. Beyond this building was the most populous Irish quarter, built up with very old wooden buildings. I watched this quarter carefully, and I think it really burned less moreois than any other section. Beyond this the buildings were safe and well protected apparently; but nothing could withstand the tremendous gale of wind blowing. The strongest and thickest buildings went buildings went buildings went though the condition of the street and thickest buildings went in the strong of the street before they were all abiass. until the flames had passed it. The whole passage was made in less than twelve hours, and it only stopped at the open pastures in Munjoy.

The fire-proof buildings were hardly safer than the wooden ones. The Custom House, in which are the Post office and United States courts, was built by government, to be entirely fire-proof, with nothing inflammable about it except the furniture and contents, and with quite an open space in frout, with open streets on two sides; but the upper part is ruined inside, and masses of stone work is peeling from the outside. In some cases wooden buildings were saved while brick buildings on each side were burned. On the easterly corner of Myrtle and Cumberland streets a wooden building was saved while every brick buildings on each side were burned. On the easterly care was destroyed.

Heretofore we have considered the city particularly safe from conflagrations. Our Fire Pepartment is excellent, and the celerity with which dangerous fires have been subdued seemed sometimes marvellous. At any rate we are happy in the belief that such a blow cannot be expected to strike twice in a century, as all the old and dangerous buildings are swept out clear, and the city will be rebuilt with the greatest attention to future security. Our shade trees were a wonderful protection on the outskirts of the fire, and to them some houses owe entirely their protection.

Our business places are getting considerably mixed. Wood & Sons, brokers, are in Mitchell's wholesale grocery on Fore street, and Davis Brothers, stationers, are happy in a sprace gum factory, with their workshop over a wholesale grocery on Commercial street; while Bailey & Noyee, stationers, have secured haif of Bradford's tool shop.

Looking down Exchange street the only building to be seen is Duran's block, at the foot. The Merchants' Bank has taken shelter in the second story of an ice office, and Fayson, broker, has taken the front of Nash's stove store, because in the second National Bank is signe into the second of the men worked a

In the Swedenborgian parish all but half a dozen families lost either their homes or places of business, and many both. Rev. Mr. Shailer, of the First Baptist Society, lost his house, church and newspaper (the Ziew' Advacet), and most of the members of his congregation were burned out.

Mr. Little, agent for the Phomix Merchants', North American, City, and New England Insurance offices of Hartford; the Harmony, of New York; Western Massachusetts and Atlantic, of Providence, and Atlantic Mutual, of Exter, estimates their total loss at $200,000—all of which are reliable and ready to pay.

It is expected that a party of roughs from the large cities are here and will try to make a raid on our banks. Large numbers of citizens, thôroughly armied, with the police, and a detachment of the Third artillery, sent by Colonel Edwards from Fort Preble, are patrolling every quarter of the oily. The tressure is thoroughly guarded, and if the attempt is made they will be returned feet foremest. There is no gas on yet in any part of the city; but the city is pretty well lighted from the blaxing ruins and numerous bods of "winter's coal" in cellars, which will burn for days.

We wish, in introducing the subject, briefly to state that this affair affords a good opportunity for our wealthy men, merchants, lawyers and philanthropists, to contribute of their means to one of the most substantial charities of the hour. In passing, we would make this opportune suggestion, that persons, contributing for the relief of the Portiand sufferers, show see to it that their money or goods goes into the hands of a fully authorized committee and take their receipt for the same. PROCLAMATION OF THE MAYOR OF NEW YORK,
MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW YORK, July 6, 1806.

To THE CITIESS OF NEW YORK:—
The city of Portland, Maine, has been visited by a most destructive fire. Thousands of her people have been left destitute and homeless. Their necessities are most pressing, and the citizens of New York owe it to their own good name to come promptly to their relief. The local authorities have no power under the Jaws to make contributions. They must be made by individuals. If there are any who desire to contribute at once, their offerings, if sent to me, will be immediately forwarded to the Mayor of Portland for distributions.

A prize composition, by Charles L. Hall, followed, on the "Literary Future of America," which discussed the subject hopefully and with considerable ability. "Toetry, in its Relations to American Life," another prize cases, was read by Wm. I. Moore, of the junior class. It tended to show that the chief end and aim of poetry is to discipline the emotions and humanize men, but more especially to teach obedience to the commands of God.

A speech by General Banks, entitled "Paris Exhibition," and making out a good case for American greatness and martial entegrise, was forcibly recited by Colonel Baker, defining in what our country consists, and analyzing it as "the history of our fathers, the tradition of our mothers, constitutional liberty, and, shower all, freedom," was gracefully delivered by Irving L. Bragdon. A speech by Senator Wilson on the "Death of Slavery," and denominating it as the life of the Union, was recited by Mavrice H. Grau in a style somewhat similar to the author's. A fine eulogy on the "Liberty of the Press," by Gurran, was well delivered by Charles F. Hiscor. An extract from a speech by Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, against the theory of secession, and a panegyric by Deming of "Grant and the Rank of General," were successfully recited by George A. Pinkney and Charles M. Hibbard respectively.

Poetical recitations followed; those by Henry S. Carr on "Alexander's Feast," and by Lucins M. Nitting on "Parrhesiua," a poem by N. F. Willis, being rendered with a vivid and dramatiq offect which elicited loud applause. Herbert L. Keys declaimed Ware's "Vision of Liberty," when the exercises were closed with choice musical selections by the orchestra.

Divorce Sutt. Before Judge Clerke.

Irrael Fischer u. Matildo Fischer.—This was an application on the part of defendant to set aside a decree of divorce granted by the Court some time in June last. The papers contained in the judgment roll set forth the service of summons, &c., upon defendant, as well as specifying certain acts of adultery alleged to have been committed by defendant. The defendant set forth by affidavit that she never was served with process, nor did she commit the acts of adultery alleged. She showed further, by affidavite of other parties, that at the times of the committal of the alleged acts of adultery she was engaged as a nurse to attend a sick woman, and that she never left the house of her employer, and was not, therefore, goilty of the adultery. The plaintiff set forth the bad character of defendant, and alleged positively that she was duly served. The affidavits on both sides were voluminous and conflicting. After argument the Judge took the papers and reserved his decaston. Blumenstiel & Johes for defendant. Carnenter & Beach for principal.

Our correspondent states that there are but three regularly orgalaws of the State, viz :- The First Society of Spiritualists of the City of New York, holding meetings at Dodworth Hall; the Society of Progressive Spiritualists, holding their meetings at Ebbitt Hall, and the Society of Christian Spiritualists, at Lamartine Hall. These societies hold their meetings every Sunday, morning and evening. They have no cabinets or dark rooms, no tying of mediuma, nor tipping of tables; they discard every species of immorality, seek for divine truth, believe in the immortality of the soul, the life everlasting, with eternal progressing, but not the resurrection of the body.

Monadnock—the former to England from New York and the latter to San Francisco from Philadelphia. Neither of the vessels was designed by Mr. Ericsson; but, on the contrary, the plans on which they are built were disap-proved by him, who predicted they would result in fail-ure. The plans of these successful monitors emanated from the Bureaus of Construction and of Steam Enof both, with the exception of the main engines of the Monadnock, was designed by the Bureau of Steam Engineering. The Monadnock's engines are according to the patent of Mr. Ericason. The reports from the sea trials of the two vessels give the following results, to which are added their dimensi Length on deck in feet and inches. 257 Length on deck in feet and inches. 257

A Sedwettom Terribly Avenged.

(From the Mankato (Minn.) Union, June 22]
A daughter of a respectable family by the name of Fox, residing in this vicinity, Italy became the mother of an illegitimate child. Until the birth of the child all efforts to persuade her to reveal its parontage were unavailing. Very recently she made the statement that a Mr. Nathaniel Stephens, a farmer of the neighborhood, the head of a family, about the age of forty-dive years, was the father of the child. Somebody not related to the Fox family, but supposed to be on unfriendly terms with Mr. Stephens, took it upon themselves to avenge the wronge of the Fox family. About three o'clock on Monday morning last three men appeared at the house of Mr. Stephens and aroused him from his bed, telling him they had a warrant for his arrest for the crime of seduction. He, demurring to the arrow; requested to see the warrant, which was not produced; but threats of tying, has hands were made if he did not go with them. He answered that if they were bound to take him he would go without being tied. Notwithstanding this his hands were tied firmly behind him, and he was then marched down the road toward the timber. Mrs. Stephens, solicitous of her husband's fate, followed close after the party. Son two or three more men emerged from the frest party, and dragged him into a ravine, three blanket over his head, partially stripped him, and applied the knife, mainting him in a manner too shocking and inhuman to be recorded. As they dragged him away to the ravine, Mrz. Stephens attempted to follow and recues him in answer to his seresum for his, but one of the first party and dragged him into a ravine, three was one of the first party held her in his graup until the deed was done. She was then released, and proceeding to the spot, she took from the pocket of Mr. Stephens his knife, cut loose his hands, uncovered his head and arrising here of his recovery are entertain
